

note, on which is written the name of Zina Williams Card. The box and the note link this stone to Card, and through her, to the history of the stone used by Joseph Smith to translate. In 1882, apostle Franklin D. Richards saw this stone in church president John Taylor's possession. Richards recorded in his diary that "the pouch containing it [the stone] [was] made by Emma," meaning Emma Smith, the wife of Joseph Smith. ("Mormon Relics," Weekly Inter Ocean [Chicago], 16 Oct. 1886, 9; Whitmer, Address to All Believers in Christ, 32; "David Whitmer," Historical Record, Oct. 1888, 625; General Church Minutes, 30 Sept. 1870; General Church Minutes, 17 Apr. 1875, as transcribed by Lajean Purcell Carruth, copy in editor's possession; Zina Young Card, Cardston, Alberta, Canada, to Franklin D. Richards, Salt Lake City, 31 July 1896, in Historical Department, Journal History of the Church, 31 July 1896; Richards, Journal, 9 Mar. 1882.) (Church History Library, Salt Lake City. Photographs by Weldon C. Anderson and Richard E. Turley Jr.)